

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The image data transfer apparatus and its method are provided. The data transmission apparatus comprises an input means, a transmission means for transmitting the data input by said input means, discrimination means for discriminating an attribute of the data input by the input means, and control means for controlling a transmission operation by the transmission means in accordance with a discrimination result by the discrimination means, wherein the control means controls a transmission route of the data input by the input means in accordance with the discrimination result by the discrimination means.